Another System Tests Prototype Release

Another new version of the system tests prototype front-end is now available at:

http://web007.slac.stanford.edu:8888/SystemTests

Thanks to Max Turri the statistics tab is now working, and it is now possible to switch between release tests and engineering model tests. In addition log-on is now supported, using Matt's CAS server. Currently you can only log-on if you are inside the SLAC firewall, and there are no extra features available to logged on users, but those issues will be addressed soon.

In addition a new Jira project has been set up, to track changes and feature/bug requests. You can access it at:

http://jira.slac.stanford.edu/secure/BrowseProject.jspa?id=10140