

SCS bullet points for week ending 2014-06-13

Scientific Computing Services purchased two new machines to handle the growth of the LSF batch computing environment. These systems are being testing using the new CPU affinity capability featured in LSF version 9. When deployed in the production environment, this upgrade will provide faster and more efficient batch service for scientific computing.